

Haa Tóoch Lichéesh (HTL)

After deep analysis of community conversations, coalition meetings, and workshop discussions from the last two years, a few themes emerged. We have identified these themes as Eco-Systems of Change, which will guide us in moving the work of our coalition forward.

Personal Growth & Transformation

The intent here is to support ourselves and each other in healing, transforming, and growing so that we are prepared to authentically engage in community reclamation. The impact of this work might be engaging in dance groups, art, therapy, food sovereignty practices, self-reflection, and bringing deeper alignment between our values and actions.

Existing in Relationship and Working across Generations

The intent here is to center the wisdom and brilliance of youth and Elders to build a community of care together. The impact of this work is HTL, continuing to create nurturing environments to connect, supporting mentorship efforts, and lifting up youth to lead the way.

Learning &
Unlearning

The intent here is to unlearn harmful societal norms and learn how to move forward in a good way, together. The impact of this work might look like community classes and workshops, and communications campaigns.

Remembering the Past to Build a Collective Future

The intent is to transform systems of oppression and work together to implement new systems that prioritize a connected, empowering, and safe community. The impact of this work might be educational equity projects, Transformative Justice practices, and increasing legal advocacy skills.
